

A tale of the A Kickers at Sugarloaf Mountain

By Kick A celebrity guest writer Dan D.

Once upon a time the legendary A Kickers gathered at 10 sharp... no wait most of them were lost (thats another story but not for children) and arrived late (legand has it, they're not morning people) although two made it on time and patiently waited for the others. Once they started down (or rather up) the path Dave, their guide, ensured they did not get lost

Dave and Dan climbed trees to enormous heights as lookouts

Joel kept dangerous animals away using scare tactics

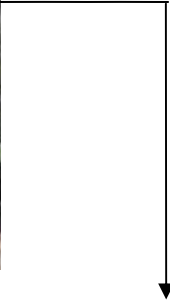

Sitting down and it feels as hard as a rock

Brian is stronger than he looks

Look out for falling rocks

What's for Dinner?

Camilla decides a delicious wild mini mushroom would be good

And then we have a huge melon

Wildlife on the trail

Look at the wing span on that butterfly

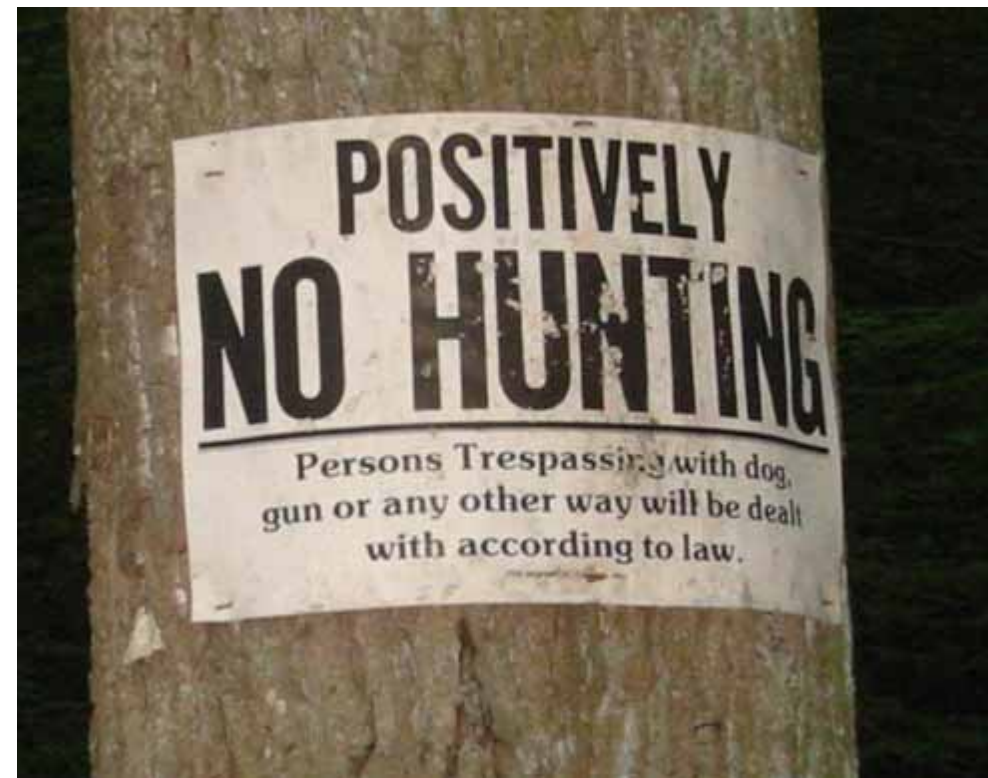

Something is very squirrely about the white eyed squirrel

Oh my a Spider ... Did I hear someone scream

The legendary a kickers couldn't bring their guns or dogs to hunt (as they are so good at it, NOT!)

The legend says a dog's wine is worse than his bark

Serenity among the trees

It is believed touching the leaf of a Luck tree will bring you good luck (if you believe in such things)

Must get the nut before anyone else

There's that squirrel again

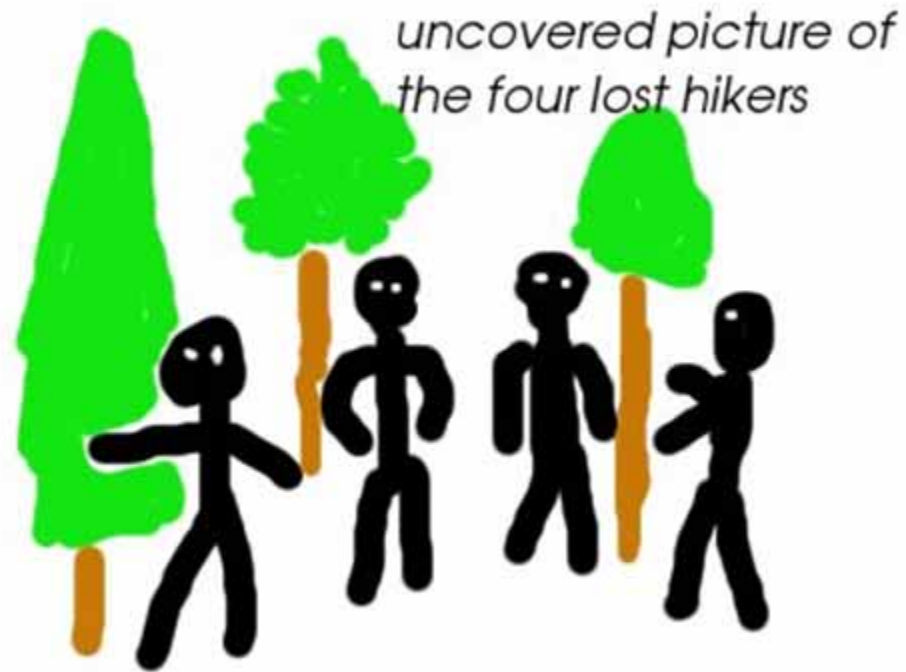

The highest point is over 1200 feet

Going up

Going down

Along the trail four lost hikers were found and Dave “our guide” gave them directions to get home safely

This tale ends but the legend continues

Yee-Ha!
